

Day 20

~Leaving Footprints~

In Genesis 49 Jacob calls his sons before him to bless and prophesize for each of them. He decided on the birthright blessings he would bestow on each of them. At the time of the Hebrews, this was done verbally and was known as an ethical will. Passing on your values to future generations is one way your life can have long lasting meaning. You, too, have the ability to share your values with others-- the life hopes that have been fulfilled; the treasured life stories and the family struggles that have been overcome. Your legacy provides an important glimpse of your importance. You lived, you loved, and you leave a legacy for future generations.

The Bible reveals God's character and His actions so that each of us can learn from it. It is a gift preserved for us through the ancient writings. In fact Scripture is the most valuable writing recorded for all prosperity!

*Listen, O heavens, and I will speak;
hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.*

*Let my teaching fall like rain
and my words descend like dew,
like showers on new grass,
like abundant rain on tender plants.*

-Deuteronomy 32: 1-2
